

“Etiquette for the Holidays” Approaching the Holidays with Style and Ease

Holidays should be a time of celebration and togetherness with family and friends, but so often they are associated with stress about entertaining, gift giving, navigating through a formal meal, and attending all the holiday parties with style.

Melina Kelley of Kelley Protocol would love to share her insight on ways to encourage a peaceful and joyous holiday season:

- Holiday Dining Etiquette
- Entertaining with style and simplicity
- Holiday office parties including exchanging gifts with co-workers and gifts for the host
- RSVP's and thank you notes
- Gifts for your children's teachers, coaches, or tutors for the season
- Appropriate gifts for service companies such as lawn care, housekeeping, etc.
- Having gifts on hand and "regifting"

Come and share this interactive luncheon, ask the questions you have always wondered about and avoid the holiday faux pas! Lunch will include salad, entrée, and dessert.
